

Practical Life

This area develops fine and gross motor skills.

This enables the child to become more independent in daily life skills. Through the use of exercises such as pouring, scooping, sweeping, sewing, table washing and personal care, the child becomes more self-sufficient. Real tools and child-size implements mirror the adult world: to refine depth perception, to strengthen eye-hand coordination, and to practice care of the self and the environment.